

GIRLS RIOT AT DELAWARE SCHOOL; TEN ARE STILL MISSING SATURDAY

INMATES REBEL AT RESTORATION OF PUNISHMENT

Former O. S. & S. O. Home Official Is Matron at Delaware Institution

Delaware, O., Dec. 29.—How to care for the 100 or more girls who are without quarters as a result of the riot at the Girls Industrial School last night, is the big problem confronting the authorities at the institution today.

The girls last night were quartered in the assembly hall where they were under guard of Sheriff Fred D. Harter and a group of his deputies. Cottages numbered 5, 6 and 11 were practically wrecked by the rioters. Scarcely a window is left in any of these cottages. Furniture was demolished, doors broken in and havoc created in general. Even the dishes in the dining rooms were demolished. It will take a large force of carpenters several days to get the cottages into shape again.

The rioters were still in the assembly hall this morning and under guard. Many of them were attired only in their night clothes.

Delaware, O., Dec. 29.—A checkup this morning by officials of the Girls Industrial School, a state correctional institution here, revealed that ten inmates were still at large, following a riot in which more than a hundred inmates participated.

The riot broke out late last night and bricks and stones were hurled by inmates at officials who attempted to restore order.

Trouble broke out about seven o'clock last night, when rumors were circulated that corporal punishment, banned by the state since the dismissal of Mae E. Stannard, as matron last summer would be restored by the new matron, Mrs. J. P. Elton.

Residents of cottage number 5, in which approximately forty girls are housed, were the first to rebel.

They demanded that the sub-matron, who is taking the place of Mrs. Ella Cherington, regular matron of the cottage, deny reports that had reached them that the "paddle" was again to be used. Failing to get satisfaction they marched to other cottages and inmates of these, it was reported, joined in the battles.

As reinforcements were received by the officials, the girls were placed under guard in the assembly hall, and by midnight, about 100 had been rounded up.

As the girls were gathered, a dance was started which continued until one after another of the inmates were forced to leave the floor exhausted.

A careful checkup is being made today, to learn the names of those still at large.

Mrs. J. P. Elton, matron of the Girls Industrial School, Delaware, O., which was the scene of a riot among the inmates, Friday night was formerly chief matron of the O. S. & S. O. Home, this city, at the time her husband was superintendent of the Xenia institution.

Mrs. Elton was ill at the time of the riot, and confined to her bed. More than 500 girls are at the institution. The occurrence is another of a series of similar disorders at the institution within the last 15 years, but said to be the worst, according to old attaches of the school.

CHARGE AIRPLANES PREVENT RAINFALL

Belgrade, December 29.—Because peasants in the Panchewo district aver that the company's aeroplanes prevent rain from falling and have caused a long drought, it seems likely that the Franco-Rumanian Aero Navigation Company will have to discontinue its service and close down its aerodrome at Panchewo.

The peasants maintain that ever since aeroplanes began landing at the station over four months ago not a drop of rain has fallen, and a unanimous appeal has been sent to the Government to suppress the station. The Government promises to give their appeal "sympathetic attention."

CLASSIFIED ADS ARE GO-GETTERS

In the first place it was "pretty soft" for Mrs. Fred Baldwin, B. Church street. Her little classified ad in the "Household Goods" column of The Gazette and The Republican brought results in two days.

Then it was "pretty soft" for the person who answered the ad right away because she got a Davenette at a very reasonable price.

And it wasn't such a difficult task for The Gazette and The Republican ad which put the deal across—for it worked fast and finished the job in a short time.

Gazette-Republican ads are noted for the speed with which they get things done. If YOU want one to do something for you—just call 111.

BRITISH SHIP MISSING

BELIEVE THIRTY LIVES LOST WHEN SHIPPING BOARD STEAMER SINKS DURING HEAVY GALE

Moscow, Dec. 29.—The United States shipping board steamship Conejos has been sunk in the Black sea, with the loss of thirty of her crew, said a dispatch from Batoum today. The Conejos foundered during a violent gale, 150 miles off Batoum. Many ships have been driven ashore by the storm which swept the eastern part of the Black sea. Harbor works at Novorossiysk were badly damaged.

COOLIDGE INDORSED IN RESOLUTION BY CENTRAL COMMITTEE

Columbus, Dec. 29.—Ohio Republican state central committee at a special session here unanimously adopted a resolution indorsing President Coolidge for nomination by the Republican national convention next year as the standard bearer of the party. Chairman C. W. Montgomery presided. The resolution read: "The Ohio Republican state central committee joins with the people of the world in mourning the passing of our great friend and leader, President Harding. But in the midst of our sorrow we are grateful for so wise and courageous a successor to our fallen chief. President Coolidge is steadfastly carrying on the administration and carrying out the policies of President Harding. We pledge him our confidence and support and cordially indorse him for nomination for the presidency at the next Republican national convention."

NATIONAL EDUCATION BODY IS AUTOCRATIC OHIO TEACHERS SAY

Columbus, Dec. 29.—The National Education association was vigorously criticized for its alleged "autocratic" form of organization and operation at the closing session of the Ohio State Teachers' association meeting here. A resolution, asking that Ohio teachers join forces with delegates from other states in a move to reorganize and "democratize" the national body, was adopted unanimously by the representative assembly, delegate body of the state association, which is affiliated with the national body. The resolution followed arraignment of the national association's alleged "autocratic" system of operation by several teachers, some of whom charged that the delegates at the national convention have no real voice in election of officers and other important business, which are in control of committees and "cliques."

REPORT 31 KILLED IN BATTLE BETWEEN FILIPINOS AND MOROS

Manila, Dec. 29.—Thirty-one Moros were reported killed in a battle with Filipino constabulary at Toal and in Lanao today. According to a report received here, a detachment of sixty constabularymen attacked the Moros under Chief Data, whose men had cut the telephone wire between Malanda and Camp Keltley. The Moros were armed with spears and bolos and were surrounded in an abandoned cottage. No casualties were reported among the constabulary.

CAN PASS BONUS AND CUT TAXES SAYS DEMOCRAT

Texas Solon Proves Statement With Mellon's Own Figures

Washington, Dec. 29.—The Mellon tax bill, proposing a horizontal reduction in taxes on incomes and far reaching changes and simplification in the general administration of the tax law will be so revamped and rewritten during its long and tortuous course through the sixty-eighth congress that neither Republicans or Democrats will be willing to hazard a prediction today as to an approximate date when congress will finally pass upon the reduction features.

It is safe to say that nearly every member of the congress has his own idea of what should go into a tax reduction bill and the various features of the Mellon bill will be subjected to individual attack from Republican members as well as partisan attack by the Democrats as a whole.

The Democrats are planning to introduce their own measure, adopting some features of the Mellon bill but differing radically in other features—particularly as regards surtaxes, excess profits taxes, taxes on stock dividends, inheritance taxes, etc.

Washington, Dec. 27.—Representative John M. Garner of Texas, ranking Democrat on the ways and means committee and an avowed opponent of the soldier bonus, declared in a statement that on the basis of Secretary of the Treasury Mellon's own figures, the bonus bill can be passed and taxes reduced at the same time.

Mr. Mellon contends that his proposed tax reduction program is contingent on defeat of the bonus.

Representative Garner said the treasury's own estimate, furnished the ways and means and senate finance committees when the bonus bill was passed and vetoed in the last congress, showed the cost of the bonus for the first year would be $22,000,000. New, Garner continued, Mr. Mellon says there is a surplus of $350,000,000 in the treasury which should be translated into tax reductions. Subtracting $22,000,000 from $350,000,000, the Texan pointed out, $328,000,000 in round numbers would still be left for tax reductions.

Moreover, Garner asserted he could suggest changes that would raise from sources that would not provoke complaint or objection $735,000,000 more revenue than the Mellon bill proposes to raise. This, he said, would make it possible to repeal, reduce and readjust to a greater extent the taxes that the secretary proposes to deal with. In this way, Garner added, the full benefits of the Mellon plan could be had and the soldiers given their bonus, too.

The Democratic leader on the ways and means committee said he would come forward with the minority tax program "just as soon as the Republicans are through, which will be when the bonus is passed, for Mr. Mellon said there can be no tax reductions for a generation if the soldier bonus is passed."

Garner emphasized that his plan would be absolutely economically sound and free from demagoguery. And he added: "You can bet a general tax reduction bill is going to pass the house. If the ways and means committee declines to act on the tax bill after the bonus is passed, the new rule will be used to compel action."

BOLL WEEVIL TO BLAME FOR HIGH PRICE OF COTTON

Cincinnati, O., Dec. 29.—While scientific men are racking their brain and exhausting the vast reservoirs of knowledge to find some effectual method of combating the ravages of the cotton boll weevil, this tiny insect is "costing the world more today than any other," Dr. N. E. McIndoo, of Washington, said here today in an address before the entomological Society of America, holding its annual meeting at the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

"Regardless of what we do," Dr. McIndoo said, "the weevil increases and continues to spread over more ground. It appears thus far to have outwitted man."

To the cotton boll weevil can be laid directly the high price of cotton goods—a cost which is bound to mount year by year unless the pest is controlled—the speaker declared.

BOY WOULD RATHER BE IN JAIL THAN TO HEAR SERMONS

Chicago, Dec. 29.—"I would rather see Desco dead than a thief," Mrs. Rose Simiz cried after he had been released from jail. That was six months ago and Desco promised to reform. Mrs. Simiz changed her prayer to a plea that her son be spared.

Today Desco again is in jail. The charges against him are more serious by far than those which caused his mother to shoot him. The repentant note has entirely gone out of Desco. He was stoic, cynical, following his arrest on charges of carrying a revolver, entering a store to hold it up and attempting to kill the officer who took him into custody. "I don't care," Desco snapped. "All I ever hear at home is a sermon. Everybody preaches to me."

The mother on hearing that her son again had been arrested collapsed. "I wish now that he had died," she cried again.

FIVE CAUGHT BY EXPLOSION

Zanesville, O., Dec. 29.—Five persons were injured probably fatally when 23 cases of dynamite exploded as the result of a short circuit, at the plant of the Pittsburgh Plate Glass company, at White Cottage, six miles from here. The injured: Ed. Barry, Fultonham; James Barnett, Fultonham; Esther Bash, White Cottage, and two unidentified laborers. All were rushed to a Zanesville hospital.

Mrs. Anton Bergers

Mrs. Anton Bergers, 75 years old, was tortured to death by a burglar in her home near Chicago, in an effort to make her reveal the hiding place of her money. The murderer got only $4.

MUTINY THEORY IS PROPOSED IN DIXMUDE CASE

Rumor Says Crew May Have Thrown Commander Overboard

Paris, Dec. 29.—It is rumored that, scenting the end of the Dixmude, the crew threw their commander, Captain De Grenedard, overboard.

It is now 11 days since the Dixmude started on its fatal voyage. It has been lost since last Saturday night. The sole evidence of its fate until last night was the finding of the body of Captain Grenedard off the coast of Sicily by Italian fishermen. Yet when the body was found it bore evidence of having been in the water for at least three days.

That would mean that either the Dixmude was lost in the tempest of Saturday night when, according to the wireless received, she should have been over the Algerian desert, or that the captain was thrown overboard.

Late last night the wife of Sergeant Hamon, a member of the crew, received a telegram from her husband stating that he had been rescued off the coast of Tripoli. No other information was given. At that time the ministry of marine announced that it was ready to admit that the airship had fallen into the Mediterranean.

There is a growing opinion among experts that the crew mutinied after the commander had twice vainly attempted to make the home base at Toulon. The fact that Grenedard's body has been found supports that theory. The fact that others of the crew may be alive does not discredit it. Furthermore meteorological experts say that it would be impossible for the giant airship with 50 men aboard as a burden to have been driven over the sea since Sunday, because the winds show a contrary direction.

So that two theories now persist. One is that the Dixmude, without her commander, and with all, or part or none of her crew, is still drifting over the terrible Sahara desert or landed in some inaccessible place, where it may take weeks to find them; or that the Dixmude fell into the sea during the tempest despite the fact that if this were true it seems almost impossible that scores of bodies or other evidences of wreckage besides the commander's body would have been found by the searching cruisers and airplanes.

ITALIAN MERCHANT SHIP IS FOUNDERED

London, Dec. 29.—The Italian Merchant ship Isonzo has foundered at sea in a storm after a collision with another ship, according to a dispatch from Constantinople this afternoon. The disaster was said to have taken place off Zonagulla. The dispatch gave no details as to loss of life.

The vessel foundered after colliding with the Turkish steamer Alideniz, said a later dispatch received by Lloyds.

HEAR WIRELESS FROM AMERICA

London, Dec. 29.—Listeners throughout the British Isles heard their first wireless concert from America last midnight. In the office of the British broadcasting company a reporter was stationed at a crystal set. At first he heard the faint music of a violin solo, and then distinctly heard the orchestra play "Just a Song at Twilight," in which the flute took the solo.

COUNTERFEITING PLOT BELIEVED BROKEN UP BY CHICAGO ARRESTS

Five Captured by Secret Service Men Thought Responsible For Placing Nearly a Million in $10.00 Spurious Notes.

Chicago, Dec. 29.—Important arrests which will clear up a counterfeiting plot found responsible for the placing of between $500,000 and $1,000,000 in $10 spurious federal reserve bank notes, were expected today by a picked squad of federal secret service men in Chicago.

The notes have been scattered between the eastern seaboard and the Rocky mountains. Five arrests already have been made, including two here and one each in St. Paul, Minn., St. Louis and Peoria, Ill., though the names of but two of the alleged conspirators have been made public.

The names of 14 of the note distributors have been learned. The five under arrest include one woman.

Mrs. Mae Sweeney was arrested in St. Louis after a frantic taxicab shopping tour in which she was said to have passed 200 of the bad bills. Operatives said she still had 136 of them when arrested.

Under grilling she revealed that her husband, Homer Sweeney, gave her the bills. He was arrested in Peoria, Ill., more of the bills were recovered and the hiding place of another cache, buried near a Chicago roadhouse.

For three months operatives of the federal secret service from Washington have been bewildered by a flood of bad money reported between New York and Omaha, from Boston to Galveston, federal reserve notes, series seven G, with the portrait of Andrew Jackson.

The imitations are readily detected by a currency expert, but are close enough even to the silk threads, to fool the experienced.

The sanitary district board of Chicago was one of the victims, receiving a whole packet of the notes, whose character was not suspected until the bogus bills were returned by the bank.

HUGHES ACTIVE IN PROBE OF LIQUOR SCANDAL

State Department to Conduct Investigation; Congress Interested

Washington, Dec. 29.—The state department became an active agent in the widespread probe of the capital's greatest liquor scandal.

It will conduct a full investigation of the diplomatic phase of the affair, involving the alleged entry of police and treasury department investigators into a house claimed as the residence of Dr. Venceslas Sokolowski, secretary of the Polish legation. This occurrence, over which members of the legation staff are said to be much incensed, was simultaneous with the arrest of members of the reputed Morris-Scarborough rum ring last week.

Dr. Ladislav Wroblewski, Polish minister, was closeted for some time with J. Butler Wright, third assistant secretary of state. It has become known that the whole matter of the alleged search for liquor was discussed and that the diplomat was assured no effort would be spared to ascertain the facts in the case, with regard to whether the immunity of a foreign representative should be infringed.

Dr. Wroblewski's call followed his receipt of a governmental message from Warsaw calling for an immediate report on the allegation that a large quantity of liquor had been found in Dr. Sokolowski's residence. It had previously been made known that the legation regarded the incident as a closed issue. The Warsaw communication, it is thought, has made it virtually incumbent upon the Polish government's plenipotentiary to thrash the affair out to a conclusion.

Meanwhile, congressional interest in the now famous rum ring activities, perhaps involving as purchasers leading officials in and out of the two houses, grew warmer. Representative Newton of Minnesota expressed complete dissatisfaction with the letter he received from District Commissioner Oyster, in charge of police, in answer to inquiries Newton dispatched to Oyster. The commissioner's reply gave him "no information at all," he asserted, indicating he would not rest until he had the information he desired. Newton, among other things, wanted to know the practices of diplomats here as to storage of liquors, where Dr. Sokolowski's alleged supply was placed, and particularly what efforts had been made to recover the "purchasers' list," which local operatives in the raids declared was seized.

LOYD GEORGE FOE HURT OWN CHANCES

London, Dec. 29.—John Zore, defeated Liberal candidate in the last English general election, now probably is a firm believer in the old Maxim, "Speak in haste and repent at leisure."

Zore contested East Lewisham Division in the election, but came out at the bottom of the poll. In his election addresses he professed himself to be an avowed anti-Lloyd Georgeite, and at one of his meetings he was carried away by his hatred of the wily Welshman to the extent that he declared that if ever Lloyd George returned to the ranks of the Liberal Party he (Zore) would throw up his candidature.

Today it is common knowledge that Lloyd George has returned to the Liberal fold, and so Zore finds himself compelled to keep out of the fray at the present election.

In an address to the electors, Zore declares that fate has decided the issue, but he will fight on the side of the present Liberal candidate for the division as if the battle were his own.

"There was a child that we could have taken. Lovely and sweet and pure. But always by doubt was our courage shaken. Never the way seemed sure."

"Childless, we hungered for baby laughter—'Adopt one,' the neighbors said. But always the thought of what might come after caused me to shake my head."

"We could have done it, and now we know it. Lonely and old we stay. Lonely and old and our faces show it. She might have been here today."

"It is so easy to find excuses! We found them, the small and great. We have made of our years but tawdry uses. No children run at our gate."

BELIEVE TROUBLE NOTICED BY RADIO FANS IS REMEDIED

With the discovery of a loose connection in the lines of the Dayton Power and Light Company, between Spring Valley and Bellbrook Saturday morning, the cause of the excessive noise in radios over the city, is thought to have been eliminated. E. H. Heathman, manager of the power company, announced.

Mr. Heathman with Lyon Galloway, radio expert, Harry McPherson, expert from Detroit, and Albert Tucker of the power and light company made further tests of the line Saturday. They traced the trouble to a transformer on a pole, between Spring Valley and Bellbrook. The noise was found at two places, and after several tests when the transformers were disconnected, the loose connections were adjusted. After tests with a portable radio of Mr. McPherson's, the crew returned to Xenia, where the radio at the Elmer Fisher residence was tested, and found to be clear of all interference.

Mr. Heathman hopes that the discovery will clear the noise from other radios over the city, but said that the noise might re-occur at any time, due to the insulation wearing from the fires at any point, causing the electric currents to interfere with the radio's. It is impossible to keep out all interference with the radios on the lines, he declared.

Any radio fans who find similar noises in their receiving sets are asked to notify Lyon Galloway or Mr. Heathman.

The New ESSEX

A SIX

Built by Hudson under Hudson Patents

Essex closed car comforts now costs $170 less than ever before. Also with this lower price you get an even more attractive Coach body and a six cylinder motor built on the principle of the famous Hudson Super-Six.

It continues Essex qualities of economy and reliability, known to 135,000 owners. It adds a smoothness of performance which heretofore was exclusively Hudson's. Both cars are alike in all details that count for long satisfactory service at small operating cost.

You will like the new Essex in the nimble ease of its operation. Gears shift quietly. Steering is like guiding a bicycle, and care of the car calls for little more than keeping it lubricated. That, for the most part, is done with an oil can.

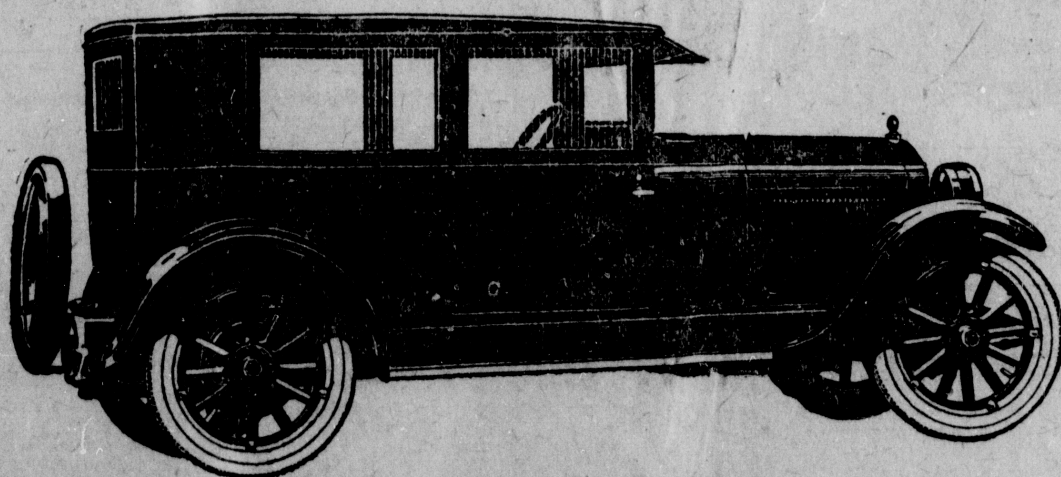

The chassis design lowers the center of gravity, giving greater comfort and safety, at all speeds, on all roads. You will be interested in seeing how this is accomplished.

Greater fuel economy is obtained. The car is lighter, longer and roomier. You will agree that from the standpoint of appearance, delightful performance, cost and reliability, the new Essex provides ideal transportation.

SHENANDOAH IS PICKED TO FLY TO NORTH POLE

The rigid airship Shenandoah, will make the flight to the North Pole, next summer. That was announced by Secretary Denby in making public the plan of the Naval Arctic Board for North Polar exploration. The board has completed its study of the means for exploring the "frozen Sahara," and its report includes recommendations for carrying out this mission.

The Navy Arctic expedition will have as its mission, first, to explore the unknown area of the North Polar region, and, second, to establish the practicability of trans-Polar air routes.

To carry out this mission, the board recommends that two vessels with mooring masts, six planes, one dirigible and certain mooring masts be used, and as early in the season as practicable. The ships, with three planes each, will go to Nome and to Spitzbergen, where preliminary flights for aerological observations will be made.

When all is ready the Shenandoah will fly to Nome via mooring mast at Fort Wayne, San Diego, Puget Sound and Nome base; thence northward for the accomplishment of the mission.

The plan recommended by the board depends on distances to be covered and weather conditions. The Shenandoah will take off from Lakehurst, N. J., and moor at Fort Worth 1191 nautical miles. Other distances to be covered by her, leg by leg, are: Fort Worth to San Diego, 1003 nautical miles; San Diego to Puget Sound, 1200 nautical miles; Puget Sound to Nome, via Seward and the West Coast of Alaska, 1444 nautical miles; Nome to Point Barrow, 526 nautical miles; Point Barrow to the North Pole, 1117 nautical miles. From Nome to the middle of the unexplored area (82 degrees north 165 west) the distance is 1100 nautical miles.

The Shenandoah will use helium gas on her flights. One engine will be removed to convert space to living quarters. With the use of "water recovery," reduction of ballast by 3300 pounds zero wind, the cruising radii of the airship are estimated, allowing a margin of 15 per cent extra radius, as follows: 2900 nautical miles at 52 knots; 3445 nautical miles at 44 knots and 4250 nautical knots at 35 knots.

June, July and August are the months favored for the expedition.

The board recommends that the northern base be situated in the Nome district for these reasons: Early accessibility, proximity to unexplored area and to United States bases; it is American territory, its communications with the South are good and it has some local facilities.

The vessel at Nome base with a mooring mast is recommended because it may select a lee to which the Shenandoah can come in event of bad weather, and because the vessel can push on to the edge of the ice pack, thus advancing the northern base as well as the time of the flight.

The vessel with a mooring mast at Spitzbergen will provide a base in case the Shenandoah finds it is desirable to continue to that point through force of circumstances or to establish a trans-Polar air route.

A mooring mast will be established at Point Barrow, as an anchor to windward against the possibility that the Pole may not be reached the first summer. Point Barrow can be reached from Lakehurst by a direct flight of 2998 nautical miles. The Pole can be reached from Point Barrow with the good margin of 1117 miles, whereas the round trip from Nome to the Pole is problematical.

Equipment will be taken for a three-point mooring at Point Barrow. Arrangements will be made with the coast guard to have the cutter Bear at Point Barrow with as many men from the Nome base as can be berthed in her, for the purpose of hauling the Shenandoah down for refueling.

Some of the essentials of equipment are enumerated as follows: Radio equipment of maximum range, compass equipment, magnetic, radio, gyro, water recovery, planes equipped for Arctic conditions, scientific instruments and emergency rations and clothing.

The board considers that with all the ships, the Shenandoah and planes equipped as recommended and provided in ample time, the Arctic expedition is feasible and practicable during the summer of 1924 without undue risk to personnel or material.

Rear Admiral William A. Moffett, chairman of the board, in his report to Secretary Denby, makes the following observations:

"The purpose of the exploration is to determine and chart the location of land in an area one-third the size of the United States. This 1,000,000 square miles lying between Alaska and the Pole is as yet unexplored.

"The area requires to be searched and mapped by aerial photography in a systematic way. The work of the first summer would accomplish reconnaissance, the possible general location of some land and establishment of base from which the work could be continued in the future.

"The United States, through this work, may be the first to establish an air route from Western Europe to Japan over the top of the world.

"Both planes and the Shenandoah are necessary for the work. The airship can hover over spots, carry more equipment and has a greater cruising radius. The planes are for shorter flights in the neighborhood of the northern operating base. They will secure aerological data to be sent to the United States by radio and acquaint the dirigible as to weather conditions.

"June will be spent in establishing the northern base. The exploration must be accomplished in July and August. When the mooring mast has been established at Nome and favorable weather reports have been received, the Shenandoah will fly direct from Puget Sound to Nome.

"The use of gasoline fuel during the long flight necessary for exploring lightens the airship considerably. To solve this problem a means has been found for recovering enough water from the gasoline burned to make up for the loss of weight in gasoline. This is known as "water recovery." Even greater weight of water can be obtained by the process than the original gasoline weighed."

The navy is determined that "nothing humanly possible" shall be left undone that will tend to insure the success of the expedition. It has been decided that the use of the airplanes and the airships in the Arctic is practicable and unattended by undue risks. The use of helium gas rather than hydrogen, in view of the noninflammable character of the former, minimizes the dangers of operation of the Shenandoah.

Secretary Denby, in a statement said: "Exploration and discovery have been among the most important returns rendered by the naval service aside from its primary service of national defense. Since the World War, the navy has been actively engaged in building up a strong arm to co-operate with the fleet; and if, as a corollary to this, the work discovery and scientific investigation and pioneer work for air commerce can be accomplished it will be added justification for the development of a naval aviation."

THIS OUGHT TO SETTLE HIM

1903-- Twenty Years Ago--1923

Notwithstanding the bad weather, a large and enthusiastic audience greeted Paul Laurence Dunbar, the poet, at the Zion Baptist Church last night.

At the home of Mayor W. T. Trader and wife, on Tuesday evening, the North End Club was entertained in a most happy manner. It was a social occasion of much interest. The cold weather has the effect of driving the wanderers into the police station for lodging, but not in such great numbers this year as in time past.

The advance man for the Brooke band of Chicago, which will play one of the justly famous "rag" concerts in Xenia, January 26, was in Xenia today.

McClelland Neighborhood

Notwithstanding the inclement weather a large crowd was in attendance at the McPherson school entertainment Friday evening at Gladly Community Hall. A large Christmas tree was the center of attraction and after an interesting program by the pupils, gifts and a treat of candy and fruit was distributed to all. The teacher, Miss Evans, was presented with a handsome present from the pupils.

The George and Frank McClelland farm is being equipped with a Delco light system.

Mrs. Ruth Fulkerson of the McClelland Hospital force was able to return to her duties after a week's absence on account of sickness.

Mrs. Emma Ketter of Lower Belmont pike, entertained her children and grandchildren for Christmas Day.

Chas. Watkins' flock of sheep was raided by dogs Tuesday night. Five were killed and several badly lacerated.

A large company of relatives were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Fred McClain and Mrs. Cynthia Glinn for Christmas dinner.

In the average home the New Years Dinner is not so elaborate an affair as the Christmas Dinner. This is because the family income has been strained to meet the many expenses of Christmas, and it cannot provide an expensive holiday feast a week later. Therefore the majority of housekeepers choose some sort of meat such as Baked Ham, Leg of Lamb, or Roast Loin of Pork to take the place of turkey or chicken at New Years. The following suggestions may help the inexperienced housekeeper to select suitable dishes to accompany these various roasts:

With Baked Ham: Serve Olives, Celery, Pea Soup, the ham, Mashed Potatoes, Baked Corn, Cranberry Jelly, Fruit Salad Mince and Pumpkin Pies, Coffee and Nuts and Raisins.
With Leg of Lamb: Serve Olives, Celery, Tomato Soup, the Lamb, Mashed Potatoes, Brown Gravy, Cranberry Jelly, Peas, Fruit Salad, Mince and Pumpkin Pies, Coffee, Nuts and Raisins.
With Loin of Pork: Serve Olives, Celery, the pork, Mashed Potatoes, Apple Sauce, Squash, Fruit Salad, Cranberry Pie, Mince Pie, Coffee, Nuts, Raisins.

The Fruit Salad mentioned, is made with diced oranges, bananas and Malaga grapes moistened with French Dressing and served on crisp lettuce.

For the sake of the inexperienced cook, I am giving the following recipe for Virginia Baked Ham. I assume that she knows how to roast the more familiar Leg of Lamb and Loin of Pork.

Virginia Baked Ham: Scrape a smoked ham with a dull knife, then soak it in cold water overnight. Scrape again in the morning, rinse, and place it skin-side down in a kettle of cold water; bring to a boil, then throw a pint of cold water into the kettle and remove the scum. Now put into the kettle ten allspice and black pepper corns, a pod of red pepper slit across, and a blade of mace. When the water again comes to the boiling point, stand the pot back on the range so that it will merely simmer. Keep the water standing one inch above the meat, adding more as it boils away. Keep lid on loosely. Let simmer till very tender (this of course depends upon the age, weight and hardness of the ham). When tender, let it cool in the same water, then drain and skin. Stick whole cloves into it all over the fat part, and sprinkle with powdered sugar. Place the meat in a roasting pan and add a little hot water, as with any roast. Bake in a slow oven for two hours, basting every 20 minutes.

SNAP SHOTS

Eugene Dent Langston, a jeweler of Hamlet, N. C., was arrested at Syracuse, N. Y., by an agent of the department of justice, charged with violation of the Mann act in eloping with Mrs. Gertrude Harrill, wife of Rev. Benjamin Harrill, Baptist clergyman.

D. P. Markey, for 33 years head of the Maccabees, has resigned as supreme commander, effective Jan. 1, to be succeeded by A. W. Frye, supreme lieutenant commander.

Ted Grosh, 20, a student at the University of Arizona at Globe, Ariz., was shot and killed, and Maxine McNelly, 19, is in the county hospital with two bullet wounds in her head. The couple were riding in an automobile when an armed negro and white man held them up. Grosh was killed when he attempted to protect the girl. The slayers escaped.

YOURSELF—NOT ANOTHER

I have become better acquainted with myself than anyone I have ever known. And I admit there is a great deal about me that I wish were not me.

But, after many years, I have decided that even though I do not like myself for many of my qualities, still I am me—myself—and not another.

I get along with myself fairly well—better than those who know me do. But then, they know me only a little and I know myself much. I have thought the matter over from every angle and have learned that I must make the best of all my faults and failings and try sincerely to express and give away this best in me getting along with the rest in the best way I know.

So I have evolved a simple philosophy: Be yourself—not another! After all, I am sure that this is what makes anyone interesting anyway. And while there is none of us who does not imitate to a certain degree, and take upon ourselves unconsciously certain characteristics that belong to others, still it is that something of personality and expression that gets us our place in the world.

Your innate intelligence and common sense, if properly mustered, are sure to save you from many a false road.

Few of us are anything but a make-up of contradictions. Like a native forest we find ourselves.

And so we must clear things only after great labor and pain are we able to clear away the stumps and have a clear field of cultivation and a rich harvest.

The trouble with so many is there is a disposition to "live the other fellow who has toiled sweet and achieved."

All the more important for then, to be yourself—not another.

God has a sound idea in mind as all different, though in a form. And since we are so similar, we have that much opportunity to exchange and thus enriching our lives by helping others.

MEMBERS OF JAPAN CABINET RESIGN TO PRINCE REGENT

Tokio, Dec. 29.—The Yamamoto cabinet passed into history today. Prince Regent Hirohito accepted the resignation of its members, which had been placed in his hands a few hours after an unsuccessful attempt had been made upon his life by a young college boy.

The Yamamoto cabinet came into being during the earthquake days and was known as the reconstruction cabinet. Its days were numbered because of opposition from the powerful Eiyuiki party but efforts were being made to keep it in power until after the marriage of the prince regent next month. These efforts probably would have been successful but for the attempt upon the prince regent's life.

Viscount Goto, minister of home affairs, assuming responsibility for failure to prevent the attack, immediately resigned and later his cabinet conferees joined in offering their resignations to the regent as a mark of humiliation.

Acceptance by the regent was delayed pending advices of the elder statesmen among whom there was some division of opinion.

MEXICAN REBELS TO PRESENT CAUSE AT CAPITAL, IT IS SAID

Vera Cruz, Dec. 29.—A revolutionary commission, appointed by Adolfo de la Huerta, leader of the Mexican revolt, is enroute to Washington to present the cause of the rebels, it was announced today. The commission, headed by Juan Lopez, sailed for New Orleans, yesterday on the steamship Nicaragua and Virginia. It will proceed to Washington immediately upon arrival at New Orleans.

Revolutionary headquarters here announced two important victories over the federals and declared that General Guadalupe Sanchez, rebel generalissimo, is so encouraged over the situation that he has ordered an immediate offensive on the Esperanza and Oriental fronts.

Oregon forces suffered defeat in an attempt to recapture Pueblo, according to revolutionary headquarters. General Alor commanded the Huerta forces.

Capture of a provision train at La Guana, a small town between San Luis and Saltillo, also is claimed by the rebels, who say officials of the train and federal guard were also taken prisoner.

General Sanchez has issued a proclamation against private persons possessing arms or ammunition in the "occupied areas," thus minimizing the danger of capture of the arms by enemies.

Revolutionary advices also report the defeat of the federals in an attempt to recapture Manzanilla under protection of cruisers. They met complete defeat at the hands of General Estrada, it is claimed.

EPISCOPAL CHURCH HEADS TO CONFER

New York, Dec. 29.—An amicable settlement of doctrinal differences within the Episcopal church, now torn in a dispute between modernists and fundamentalists, was forecast by church leaders today. A series of conferences, at which the advocates of the contending schools of theological thought, will thresh out their beliefs, has been arranged. To these conferences, which probably will be held in New York, probably will come clergymen and laymen from congregations throughout the country.

MEETING CLOSES

Columbus, O., Dec. 29.—A public session and a noon luncheon conference marked the close of the annual convention of the American Catholic Historical association here today.

Speakers in today's program include: Rev. Lawrence W. Mulhane, Mount Vernon, Rev. Richard Quinlan, S. T. L., Boston and Rev. Francis Betten, S. J. John Carroll University, Cleveland.

ZANGWILL'S LATEST

Chicago, Dec. 29.—Despite the fact that American immigration laws probably would bar Christ, were He to attempt to come to this country, Israel Zangwill, noted Jewish author, declared, America remains the hope of the world. "The world has not yet recovered from the intoxication of war," said Mr. Zangwill. "We have lived almost a decade of insanity, and it is time now for things to change." America, according to Mr. Zangwill, is not a nation. It is merely a contingent, he declared, with a vast and chaotic social organism not yet thoroughly amalgamated.

GIRLS TO MARRY PRINCES

Ottawa, Ont., Dec. 29.—When Miss Lois Booth of Ottawa marries Prince Erik of Denmark she will be the first Canadian girl to become a princess, but her prince won't be the only one to have renounced his possible rights to the Danish throne to marry on this side of the Atlantic. For Miss Margaret Green of New York has also won a Danish prince of royal blood from his kingly prospects. Interest in the Canadian romance is heightened by the fact that the Prince of Wales as a friend of both the principals is said to have aided materially in bringing the couples together.

HIRAM JOHNSON TO ENTER PRIMARIES FOR ALABAMA VOTES

Washington, Dec. 29.—Announcement was made by Senator Hiram Johnson that he will enter the Alabama primary in the contest to obtain the 16 delegates from that state to the Cleveland convention. The primary will be held the second Tuesday in March.

An entry in the primary has been made on behalf of President Coolidge, so that the election will be a clear-cut race between the president and Senator Johnson for the Alabama delegation. The result will be important by reason of the fact that the primary will be the second in order among the states, that of South Dakota, to be held March 5, being the first.

Senator Johnson's announcement is a direct answer to reports which were published in certain newspapers to the effect that he is preparing to withdraw entirely from the fight for the nomination and allow it to go to President Coolidge by default. The senator spent several hours in conference with his campaign manager, Frank H. Hitchcock, who had come down from New York to report on the situation as observed by him on his recent trip to the west. Hitchcock reported that the campaign is progressing favorably.

GENERAL WOOD'S SON MAKES $800,000.

Lieut. Osborne Wood.

Lieutenant Osborne Cutler Wood, son and aide of Governor-General Leonard Wood, of the Philippines, is soon to resign from the army to seek a diplomatic career. Young Wood, only 26, has "cleaned up" $800,000 by stock market transactions. General Wood, a man of small means himself, put an end to his son's financial transactions, believing it unwise for a young man to make so great a fortune rapidly. Certain gossip caused the War Department to make an investigation, which resulted in showing that Lieutenant Wood's transactions had been absolutely legitimate and straightforward stock deals, in which he showed remarkable financial acumen. None of his dealings were in Philippine securities, Lieutenant Wood believing it wrong to deal in stocks which might be influenced by any of his father's official actions. Young Wood, a Harvard graduate, enlisted as a private in 1918, but failed to get overseas. He was appointed a Second Lieutenant of Infantry on his twenty-first birthday, in September, 1918.

ST HIGH QUINTET TAKES SECOND GAME FROM SPRINGFIELD

By L. J. Wones

The East High basketball team took up its second win of the season Friday night at the East high gym at the expense of the Springfield Hi Y team. The final score was 32 to 12.

The game was scarcely a minute old when Baker and Taylor counted on the field. This seemed to be the starting signal for the winners and the East bunch hit the net frequently. The score at the end of the half was 20 to 7 with the locals leading. Coach Lewis injected his entire second string quintet into the game and they kept up the work of regulars except that their passwork was not as fast. The East end displayed a five man defense that gave the visitors plenty of trouble when they tried to work the ball down the floor. The locals defense was especially tight in the second half as the visitors scored only five points, one field goal and three fouls.

Baker and D. Ware were high scorers. Baker had 16 points to his credit while D. Ware had 10. Taylor looked good at the other end. The guarding of H. Taylor and Raymond was high class. Merchant and Buckner were Springfield's best bet.

Two preliminaries were staged, and both were fast and furious all the way. In the first tilt the Lincolns defeated the Jamestown Stars by a 10 to 2 score. The second battle between the Dead Shots and the Lion Tamers was won by the latter club 20 to 11.

Lineup and summary:

WOOL GROWERS TO MEET THURSDAY

This meeting will be the annual business session, and will be addressed by an officer from the Ohio State Sheep and Wool Growers' Association, J. C. Williamson, Xenia, is president of the local association, holding that office since its inception.

BERNARR MACDONALD

Meat adds no essential food values that can not be derived more cheaply from other sources if the digestive organs are normal. As used in the conventional American diet, meat supplies entirely too much protein, which sometimes results in overburdening the excretory organs with nitrogenous waste products. Moreover, meat contains the waste products of the animal and these substances are very similar to the waste from human cells, though with a healthy digestion this is easily eliminated in the alimentary canal.

For the further consideration of foods of vegetable origin, we can divide them in the following groups: Grain and Grain Products; Roots or Tubers; Leafy Vegetables; Fruits; Nuts; Extracted Oils; Extracted or Manufactured Sugars. All of the above groups of foods are wholesome and may be included in the diet, but they are not equally complete, or of equal dietetic worth. Some of these foods, while harmless if used in moderate quantities and in proper combination with other foods, result in a seriously deficient diet if used in such proportions as to crowd out other groups.

Because of the mistakes of flour manufacturers, all grain and grain products could be entirely eliminated from the human diet, and thereby decrease the danger of dietetic deficiencies and inadequate nutrition. But it is difficult to do this because grains and their products supply the great bulk of human food. Indeed it would not be possible without revolutionary changes in our agriculture and food producing methods, to support the human race without the use of grain.

Grains are the seeds of various grass plants. The bulk of the substance of all grains is starch. Together with this starch is incorporated from eight to ten per cent vegetable protein. The starchy substance of grain may be ground up to produce flours and meals which are the basis of our bread-making and baking arts. In addition to this starchy portion, which fills the endosperm or bulky interior of the grain all grains have an outer coating of bran, and also a germ. The milling industry adopted the practice of removing both bran and germ, because they are usually darker in color and cannot be ground as fine. The refined flour from which both the bran and germ are removed is whiter and finer and incidentally will make a lighter, sirrier loaf of bread. Such a loaf appeals to the fastidious taste of the housewife. The removal of the bran and germ results in a serious loss in nutritive values.

Beaver Creek High School basketball teams divided games with the Alumni teams at Beaver Friday night, the boys' team losing, 32 to 28, and the girls' winning 15 to 12.

The boys' game was nip and tuck throughout and the teams were frequently tied. A knotted count looked inevitable until the last few minutes to play, when Durbach, former star in the county champion five, rolled in two baskets that put the graduates out in front.

CEDARVILLE FIVE DEFEATS DEFIANCE IN OVERTIME GAME

Cedarville College Varsity quintet defeated Defiance College 25 to 23 in a thrilling overtime contest at the Montgomery County Fairgrounds, Dayton, Friday night.

Coming from behind with a rush when the score was 23 to 9 against them, the Cedarville pastimers steadily gained until they knotted the count as the final whistle blew. In the additional time allowed, they counted the two points that won the game.

Two former Central High stars, Larry Currie and Walker Taylor, starred for the Reformed Presbyterians. Swisher, Defiance forward, opened the scoring with a short shot and soon added two more points. Lankenau made the count six before Currie rang in with a pair. Defiance again forged ahead rapidly, so that the score was 16 to 9 as the half closed.

Defiance again started with a rush at the opening of the second half, running the total to 23 to 9. Then Township opened for Cedarville, and the Green County lads found their pace. Taylor counted four times and Currie twice in the rest of the half, so that the score was 23 all at the close of the regulation time. Rockhold added the basket in the overtime period that won the game.

Cedarville won through success in long shots, as the Defiance five-man defense kept them from working with in short range. Cedarville was handicapped by the absence of three regulars. The lineup and summary:

MOTHER FINED FOR WHIPPING TEACHER

Annistown, Ala., Dec. 31.—A hair-pulling wrestling match, flavored with a bit of Jack Dempsey punch, occurred in a fashionable residence of this community recently, all because a young school teacher whipped the young son of Mrs. Annie Willmon, owner of the fashionable home.

According to the story told in court later by Miss Cleo Mills, the young school teacher, she whipped young Willmon because he persisted in fighting the peaceful members of the little school. A short while after she had administered the rod to the boy the young lady was summoned to the Willmon home by the boy's mother.

"I want to show you how that whip felt to my boy," Mrs. Willmon was quoted as saying when Miss Mills entered her home.

Miss Mills forthwith objected to such brutal treatment from the boy's mother, and a scuffle for possession of the whip ensued.

When the case came up in court Mrs. Willmon was fined $50 and costs on a charge of assaulting Miss Mills.

AN OMEN Chapter 51

Cynthia and Dale arrived back in New York. It was past 6 o'clock when their train pulled into the Grand Central Station.

"Must you go home now? Let's have dinner together," Dale tried to persuade.

"But our bags?" Cynthia returned hesitatingly, as the porter put them down to wait instructions.

"We can send yours up to the house, and I'll check mine here," he suggested quickly.

Cynthia waited. A sunless mood was upon her and she longed for something gay and diverting. The depressing memory of Hope's trim, knickerbockered form, the wild, crude loneliness of the forest, and a strange new light in Lee Brown's eyes, lingered to torment her.

She turned quickly to Dale. "All right! Tend to them for me." In her voice was a quality which said, "Do anything you want, only let's be gay. I must stop thinking."

Dale caught the tone immediately. He jumped forward and directed the porter.

"Now, it won't take a minute. Will you wait here, or go with me?" he questioned, laying his hand fondly on her arm.

"I'll wait, Dale. Hurry, won't you?" she decided, and her eyes refused to meet his. She felt unpleasantly forlorn, and she was loath to let Dale read her feelings.

Cynthia was not a person of extreme moods, and she seldom sank very far in dejection. If her nature indulged in ultra expression it was always toward the heights. She liked dancing lightly on the top of life. And now she was eager to climb back again into the sunlight and shake off this gloom into which her trip to the Adirondacks had plunged her.

"Back again! Now for a taxi," Dale greeted, returning suddenly. He took her arm and guided her up the steps. "Where shall we go? Have you any choice?" he asked solicitously.

"Lots of music—a cabaret!" she answered, brightening at the thoughts of it.

He hailed a taxi and helped her into it. As it whirled around and out of the station Dale sank back comfortably and placed his hand over Cynthia's.

"This is the life! Isn't it, Dale? You—you're glad to get back, aren't you? I can tell it in your voice," he said.

"Yes, this is better. I'm afraid I like plenty of bubbles in my champagne," she returned, with a relieved laugh that shook the gloominess out of her voice.

Dale joined in the laugh and caught her hand up impulsively.

"You ought not to have anything but luxury, Cynthia. You can't take a hot-house plant to a swamp and expect it to bloom," he exclaimed ardently.

"Perhaps not, Dale dear—not my variety," Cynthia returned, adding suddenly: "Though an orchid thrives in that sort of culture." Then she became silent and thought to herself, though she did not tell her thoughts to Dale, "—and Lee always likes orchids best of all. I wonder if that's an omen." She hated the idea, but somehow something made her think of Hope as like an orchid. Hope was so preclusive and debonair and she seemed to thrive in that barren wilderness.

Cynthia turned to Dale impulsively. "I want to dance, and dance, and dance tonight. I want to just fill my heart with music, and motion, and dazzling lights."

"That's the idea! We—why, we'll dance all night if you say the word," he returned eagerly, and lifted her small hand to his lips.

But she was not in the mood for that sort of thing from Dale and she drew her hand slowly away.

"Aren't we most tired? I do wish that taxi driver would hurry. I—I don't like shadows and gloominess."

Even the inside of a taxi is depressing—isn't it?" she said, turning from him and peering anxiously out of the window.

Dale watched her wonderingly. He would have given a great deal to have known what her feelings were just then. There was something he wanted to ask her, but her strange mood blanched the warmth of his ardor.

Tomorrow—Trying to Dodge the Question.

EDWARD HART AND ROBERT BARR PLEASE AUDIENCE FRIDAY

Showing finished technique, gal from eminent music masters of New York, Edward Hart, organist, New York City, formerly of this city, lighted a large audience of Xenia music lovers at the First United Presbyterian Church, Friday evening, assisted by Robert Barr, of Columbus, baritone.

The program was exceptionally pleasing to the audience of patriots and friends of both artists, each number being given with pleasing results. Outstanding among Mr. Hart's numbers, which vied for favors, was "Solita in a Minor," by Felix Borowka.

The program was divided into two parts, the first part including a group of numbers by Mr. Hart, and Mr. Barr, and the second, two Hart groups of four numbers by Mr. Barr.

Mr. Barr possesses an unusual fine baritone voice and had splendid stage presence, revealing experience before appreciative audiences. "The Pilgrim's Song" by Tchakowsky was one of the favorites of his offerings.

The Paradox of Climate and Calendar

A remarkable paradox of climate and calendar is apparent at this season of the year. According to the calendar

It Is Winter

That means—in this northern country—a period of overcast skies and penetrating winds—of cold driving rains, and snow and ice—and an occasional blizzard with the bottom dropping out of the thermometer.

But—and here is where the paradox comes in—in spite of the calendar which may register January or February, cold midwinter months—it is

INMATES REBEL AT RESTORATION OF PUNISHMENT

Former O. S. & S. O. Home Official Is Matron at Delaware Institution

Delaware, O., Dec. 29.—How to care for the 100 or more girls who are without quarters as a result of the riot at the Girls Industrial home last night, is the big problem confronting the authorities at the institution today.

The girls last night were quartered in the assembly hall where they were under guard of Sheriff Fred D. Harter and a group of his deputies. Cottages numbered 5, 6 and 11 were practically wrecked by the rioters. Scarcely a window is left in any of these cottages. Furniture was demolished, doors broken in and have created in general. Even the dishes in the dining rooms were demolished. It will take a large force of carpenters several days to get the cottages into shape again.

The rioters were still in the assembly hall this morning and under guard. Many of them were attired only in their night clothes. Delaware, O., Dec. 29.—A checkup this morning by officials of the Girls Industrial School, a state correctional institution here, revealed that ten inmates were still at large, following a riot in which more than a hundred inmates participated.

The riot broke out late last night and bricks and stones were hurled by inmates at officials who attempted to restore order.

Trouble broke out about seven o'clock last night, when rumors were circulated that corporal punishment, banned by the state since the dismissal of Mae E. Stannard, as matron last summer, would be restored by the new matron, Mrs. J. P. Elton.

Residents of cottage number 5, in which approximately forty girls are housed, were the first to rebel. They demanded that the sub-matron, who is taking the place of Mrs. Elton, regular matron of the cottage, deny reports that had reached them that the "paddle" was again to be used. Failing to get satisfaction they marched to other cottages and inmates of these, it was reported, joined in the battles.

As reinforcements were received by the officials, the girls were placed under guard in the assembly hall, and by midnight, about 100 had been rounded up.

As the girls were gathered, a dance was started which continued until one after another of the inmates were forced to leave the floor exhausted. A careful checkup is being made today, to learn the names of those still at large.

Mrs. J. P. Elton, matron of the Girls Industrial School, Delaware, O., which was the scene of a riot among the inmates, Friday night was formerly chief matron of the O. S. & S. O. Home, the city at the time her husband was superintendent of the Xenia institution.

Mrs. Elton was ill at the time of the riot, and confined to her bed. More than 500 girls are at the institution. The occurrence is another of a series of similar disorders at the institution within the last 15 years, but said to be the worst, according to old attaches of the school.

CHARGE AIRPLANES PREVENT RAINFALL

Belgrade, December 29.—Because peasants in the Pantechevo district are that the company's aeroplanes prevent rain from falling and have caused a long drought, it seems likely that the Franco-Rumanian Aero Navigation Company will have to discontinue its service and close down its aerodrome at Pantechevo.

The peasants maintain that ever since aeroplanes began landing at the station over four months ago not a drop of rain has fallen, and a unanimous appeal has been sent to the Government to suppress the station. The Government promises to give their appeal "sympathetic attention."

Then it was "pretty soft" for the person who answered the ad right away because she got a Davenette at a very reasonable price.

And it wasn't such a difficult task for The Gazette and The Republican ad which put the deal across—for it worked fast and finished the job in a short time.

COOLIDGE INDORSED IN RESOLUTION BY CENTRAL COMMITTEE

Columbus, Dec. 29.—Ohio Republican state central committee at a special session here unanimously adopted a resolution indorsing President Coolidge for nomination by the Republican national convention next year as the standard bearer of the party. Chairman C. W. Montgomery presided. The resolution read: "The Ohio Republican state central committee joins with the people of the world in mourning the passing of our great friend and leader, President Harding. But in the midst of our sorrow we are grateful for so wise and courageous a successor to our fallen chief. President Coolidge is steadfastly carrying on the administration and carrying out the policies of President Harding. We pledge him our confidence and support and cordially indorse him for nomination for the presidency at the next Republican national convention."

NATIONAL EDUCATION BODY IS AUTOCRATIC OHIO TEACHERS SAY

Columbus, Dec. 29.—The National Education association was vigorously criticized for its alleged "autocratic" form of organization and operation at the closing session of the Ohio State Teachers' association meeting here. A resolution, asking that Ohio teachers join forces with delegates from other states in a move to reorganize and "democratize" the national body, was adopted unanimously by the representative assembly, delegate body of the state association, which is affiliated with the national body. The resolution followed arraignment of the national association's alleged "autocratic" system of operation by several teachers, some of whom charged that the delegates at the national convention have no real voice in election of officers and other important business, which are in control of committees and "cliques."

Texas Solon Proves Statement With Mellon's Own Figures

Washington, Dec. 29.—The Mellon tax bill, proposing a horizontal reduction in taxes on incomes and far-reaching changes and simplification in the general administration of the tax law will be so revamped and rewritten through the sixty-eighth congress that neither Republicans or Democrats will be willing to hazard a prediction today as to an approximate date when congress will finally pass upon the reduction features.

It is safe to say that nearly every member of the congress has his own idea of what should go into a tax reduction bill and the various features of the Mellon bill will be subjected to individual attack from Republican members as well as partisan attack by the Democrats as a whole.

The Democrats are planning to introduce their own measure, adopting some features of the Mellon bill but differing radically in other features—particularly as regards surtaxes, excess profits taxes, taxes on stock dividends, inheritance taxes, etc.

Washington, Dec. 29.—Representative John M. Garner of Texas, ranking Democrat on the ways and means committee and an avowed opponent of the soldier bonus, declared in a statement that on the basis of Secretary of the Treasury Mellon's own figures, the bonus bill can be passed and taxes reduced at the same time.

Mr. Mellon contends that his proposed tax reduction program is contingent on defeat of the bonus.

Representative Garner said the treasury's own estimate, furnished the ways and means and senate finance committees when the bonus bill was passed and vetoed in the last congress, showed the cost of the bonus for the first year would be $23,000,000. Now, Garner continued, Mr. Mellon says there is a surplus of $360,000,000 in the treasury which should be translated into tax reductions. Subtracting $22,000,000 from $360,000,000, the Texan pointed out, $270,000,000 in round numbers would still be left for tax reductions.

Moreover, Garner asserted he could suggest changes that would raise from sources that would not provoke complaint or objection $735,000,000 more revenue than the Mellon bill proposes to raise. This, he said, would make it possible to repeal, reduce and readjust to a greater extent the taxes that the secretary proposes to deal with. In this way, Garner added, the full benefits of the Mellon plan could be had and the soldiers given their bonus, too.

The Democratic leader on the ways and means committee said he would come forward with the minority tax program "just as soon as the Republicans are through, which will be when the bonus is passed, for Mr. Mellon said there can be no tax reductions for a generation if the soldier bonus is passed."

Garner emphasized that his plan would be absolutely economically sound and free from demagoguery. And he added: "You can bet a general tax reduction bill is going to pass the house. If the ways and means committee declines to act on the tax bill after the bonus is passed, the new rule will be used to compel action."

Kansas City, Dec. 29.—Charging that the motion picture production, "The Covered Wagon," has caused her to be held up to shame and ridicule, Mrs. Virginia Bridger Hahn, Kansas City, Kan., brought suit in the Wyandotte county district court for $1,000,000 damages against the Famous Players-Lasky corporation and the Paramount Pictures corporation. Mrs. Hahn is the only surviving child of James (Jim) Bridger, famous scout, guide and plainsman, who plays a prominent part in the story of "The Covered Wagon," a picture based upon a historical novel by Emerson Hough. According to the petition in the suit, the motion picture depicts Bridger as a heavy drinker and a person who often became intoxicated. It also shows him as living with two Indian squaws, it is charged.

BOY WOULD RATHER BE IN JAIL THAN TO HEAR SERMONS

Chicago, Dec. 29.—"I would rather see Desco dead than a thief," Mrs. Rose Simiz cried after wounding her 19-year-old boy after he had been released from jail. That was six months ago and Desco promised to reform. Mrs. Simiz changed her prayer to a plea that her son be spared.

Today Desco again is in jail. The charges against him are more serious by far than those which caused his mother to shoot him. The repentant note has entirely gone out of Desco. He was stoic, cynical, following his arrest on charges of carrying a revolver, entering a store to hold it up and attempting to kill the officer who took him into custody. "I don't care," Desco snapped. "All I ever hear at home is a sermon. Everybody preaches to me."

The mother on hearing that her son again had been arrested collapsed. "I wish now that he had died," she cried again.

FIVE CAUGHT BY EXPLOSION

Zanesville, O., Dec. 29.—Five persons were injured probably fatally when 23 cases of dynamite exploded as the result of a short circuit, at the plant of the Pittsburgh Plate Glass company, at White Cottage, six miles from here. The injured: Ed. Barry, Fultonham; James Barnett, Fultonham; Esther Bash, White Cottage; and two unidentified laborers. All were rushed to a Zanesville hospital.

Mrs. Anton Bergera, 75 years old, was tortured to death by a burglar in her home near Chicago, in an effort to make her reveal the hiding place of her money. The murderer got only $4.

MUTINY THEORY IS PROPOSED IN DIXMUE CASE

Rumor Says Crew May Have Thrown Commander Overboard

Paris, Dec. 29.—It is rumored that, according to the end of the Dixmude, the crew threw their commander, Captain De Grenedan, overboard.

It is now 11 days since the Dixmude started on its fatal voyage. It has been lost since last Saturday night. The sole evidence of its fate until last night was the finding of the body of Captain Grenedan off the coast of Sicily by Italian fishermen. Yet when the body was found it bore evidence of having been in the water for at least three days.

That would mean that either the Dixmude was lost in the tempest of Saturday night when, according to the wireless received, she should have been over the Algerian desert, or that the captain was thrown overboard.

Late last night the wife of Sergeant Hamon, a member of the crew, received a telegram from her husband stating that he had been rescued off the coast of Tripoli. No other information was given. At that time the ministry of marine announced that it was ready to admit that the airship had fallen into the Mediterranean.

There is a growing opinion among experts that the crew mutinied after the commander had twice vainly attempted to make the home base at Toulon. The fact that Grenedan's body has been found supports that theory. The fact that others of the crew may be alive does not discredit it. Furthermore meteorological experts say that it would be impossible for the giant airship with 50 men aboard as a burden to have been driven over the sea since Sunday, because the winds show a contrary direction.

So that two theories now persist. One is that the Dixmude, without her commander, and with all, or part or none of her crew, is still drifting over the terrible Sahara desert or landed in some inaccessible place, where it may take weeks to find them; or that the Dixmude fell into the sea during the tempest despite the fact that if this were true it seems almost impossible that scores of bodies or other evidences of wreckage besides the commander's body would have been found by the searching cruisers and airplanes.

ITALIAN MERCHANT SHIP IS FOUNDERED

London, Dec. 29.—The Italian Merchant ship Isorno has foundered at sea in a storm after a collision with another ship, according to a dispatch from Constantinople this afternoon. The disaster was said to have taken place off Zonaguidia. The dispatch gave no details as to loss of life.

The vessel foundered after colliding with the Turkish steamer Al-denzil, said a later dispatch received by Lloyds.

HEAR WIRELESS FROM AMERICA

London, Dec. 29.—Listeners in throughout the British Isles heard their first wireless concert from America last midnight. In the office of the British Broadcasting company a reporter was stationed at a crystal set. At first he heard the faint music of a violin solo, and then distinctly heard the orchestra play "Just a Song at Twilight," in which the flute took the solo.

COUNTERFEITING PLOT BELIEVED BROKEN UP BY CHICAGO ARRESTS

Five Captured by Secret Service Men Thought Responsible For Placing Nearly a Million in $10.00 Spurious Notes.

Chicago, Dec. 29.—Important arrests which will clear up a counterfeiting plot found responsible for the placing of between $500,000 and $1,000,000 in $10 spurious federal reserve bank notes, were expected today by a picket squad of federal secret service men in Chicago.

The notes have been scattered between the eastern seaboard and the Rocky mountains. Five arrests already have been made, including two here and one each in St. Paul, Minn., St. Louis and Peoria, Illinois, though the names of but two of the alleged conspirators have been made public.

The names of 14 of the note distributors have been learned. The five under arrest include one woman. Mrs. Mae Sweeney was arrested in St. Louis after a frantic taxicab shopping tour in which she was said to have passed 200 of the bad bills. Operatives said she still had 136 of them when arrested.

Under grilling she revealed that her husband, Homer Sweeney, gave her the bills. He was arrested in Peoria, Ill., more of the bills were recovered and the hiding place of another cache, buried near a Chicago roadhouse.

For three months operatives of the federal secret service from Washington have been bewildered by a flood of bad money reported between New York and Omaha, from Boston to Galveston, federal reserve notes, series seven G, with the portrait of Andrew Jackson.

The imitations are readily detected by a currency expert, but are close

JOINT MANEUVERS TO TEST ABILITY TO PROTECT CANAL

Washington, Dec. 29.—Joint army-navy maneuvers which will test the ability of the United States to protect the Panama Canal, will be held from January 16 to 22, it was announced by Secretary of War Weeks.

The problem will be to protect the canal against assault while the Pacific and Atlantic fleets are combined to meet the enemy fleet advancing from Europe. It involves three points: First, the ability of the army to keep the canal open in war; second, the time required to concentrate the Pacific and Atlantic fleets, and third, the practicability of joint supervision of the army and navy forces in an operation which necessitates their joint use.

The time element is of the utmost importance and calls for the closest co-operation between the army and navy and the canal authorities.

The general situation, prepared by the joint army and navy board, assumes the existence of strained relations between the United States and an Atlantic power of equal resources. Early in January the enemy fleet appears and the United States orders the Pacific fleet to sail for the Atlantic.

The enemy will seek to prevent the Pacific fleet from passing through the canal. If this effort succeeds the enemy will dominate the Atlantic, driving American ships to port and attacking the seaboard.

COOLIDGE IGNORES CLARKE'S LETTER

Washington, Dec. 29.—President Coolidge has sidestepped the opportunity afforded him to interfere in the internal strife now threatening the existence of the Ku Klux Klan. At the white house it was said that he would ignore the letter sent to him by Edward Young Clarke, former imperial wizard, calling on him to aid in disbanding the Klan as a "menace" to organized government. Clarke's purpose in sending his letter was that it might receive wide publicity in the newspapers, rather than any thought of getting action on the part of the executive, the white house spokesman said. The decision to disregard the Clarke letter, the spokesman said, is not to be construed as setting a precedent for ignoring open letters to the president. Any such letters with a meritorious appeal will be acted on.

TO SERVE ON REPARATIONS BODY

New York, Dec. 29.—Owen D. Young, director's chairman of the General Electric company, officially announced the acceptance of the invitation of the reparations commission to serve with Brigadier General Charles G. Dawes as American representatives on the first committee to consider a balancing of Germany's budget. Mr. Young's acceptance was cabled to the commission in Paris.

enough even to the silk threads, to fool the experienced. The sanitary district board of Chicago was one of the victims, receiving a whole packet of the notes, whose character was not suspected until the bogus bills were returned by the bank.

HUGHES ACTIVE IN PROBE OF LIQUOR SCANDAL

State Department to Conduct Investigation; Congress Interested

Washington, Dec. 29.—The state department became an active agent in the widespread probe of the capital's greatest liquor scandal.

It will conduct a full investigation of the diplomatic phase of the affair, involving the alleged entry of police and treasury department investigators into a house claimed as the residence of Dr. Vincencas Sokolowski, secretary of the Polish legation. This occurrence, over which members of the legation staff are said to be much incensed, was simultaneous with the arrest of members of the reputed Morris-Scarborough rum ring last week.

Dr. Ladislav Wroblewski, Polish minister, was closeted for some time with J. Butler Wright, third assistant secretary of state. It has become known that the whole matter of the alleged search for liquor was discussed and that the diplomat was assured no effort would be spared to ascertain the facts in the case, with regard to whether the immunity of a foreign representative should be infringed.

Dr. Wroblewski's call followed his receipt of a governmental message from Warsaw calling for an immediate report on the allegation that a large quantity of liquor had been found in Dr. Sokolowski's residence.

It had previously been made known that the legation regarded the incident as a closed issue. The Warsaw communication, it is thought, has made it virtually incumbent upon the Polish government's plenipotentiary to thrash the affair out to a conclusion.

Meanwhile, congressional interest in the now famous rum ring activities, perhaps involving as purchasers leading officials in and out of the two houses, grew warmer. Representative Newton of Minnesota expressed complete dissatisfaction with the letter he received from District Commissioner Oyster, in charge of police, in answer to inquiries Newton dispatched to Oyster. The commissioner's reply gave him "no information at all," he asserted, indicating he would not rest until he had the information he desired. Newton, among other things, wanted to know the practices of diplomats here as to storage of liquors, where Dr. Sokolowski's alleged supply was placed, and particularly what efforts had been made to recover the "moot 'purchasers' list," which local operatives in the raids declared was seized.

LLOYD GEORGE FOR HURT OWN CHANCES

London, Dec. 29.—John Zore, defeated Liberal candidate in the last English general election, now probably is a firm believer in the old maxim, "Speak in haste and repent at leisure."

Zore contested East Lewisham Division in the election, but came out at the bottom of the poll. In his election addresses he professed himself to be an avowed anti-Lloyd Georgeite, and at one of his meetings he was carried away by his hatred of the wily Welshman to the extent that he declared that if ever Lloyd George returned to the ranks of the Liberal Party he (Zore) would throw up his candidature.

Today it is common knowledge that Lloyd George has returned to the Liberal fold, and so Zore finds himself compelled to keep out of the fray at the present election.

In an address to the electors, Zore declares that fate has decided the issue, but he will fight on the side of the present Liberal candidate for the division as if the battle were his own.

FRIENDS

He does not know me, and he flings At me the scorn which burns and stings; Perhaps my name he greets with jeers. Questions my motives with his sneers. But here and there I have a few Good friends who are forever true.

If I should fall they would be there To comfort me in my despair; To bind my wounds, and win me back To strength to meet a fresh attack. Whatever cruel storm descends, It will not drive away my friends.

Strangers may flee and fawners hide, Pharisees walk the other side. The crowds may mock and jibe and jeer;

But from the few I still shall hear. Though trampled in the dust I lie, The words that they are standing by.

The men who walk in throngs depart When the harsh storms of trouble start.

But friends who know—the loyal few Who have gone down the road with you— When life grows pitifully gray, By storms are never blown away.

Built by Hudson under Hudson Patents

Essex closed car comforts now costs $170 less than ever before. All with this lower price you get an even more attractive Coach body and a six cylinder motor built on the principle of the famous Hudson Super-Six.

It continues Essex qualities of economy and reliability, known to 135,000 owners. It adds a smoothness of performance which heretofore was exclusive Hudson's. Both cars are alike in details that count for long satisfactory service at small operating cost.

You will like the new Essex in the nimble ease of its operation. Gears shift quietly. Steering is like guiding a bicycle, and care of the car is for little more than keeping it lubricated. That, for the most part, is done with an oil can.

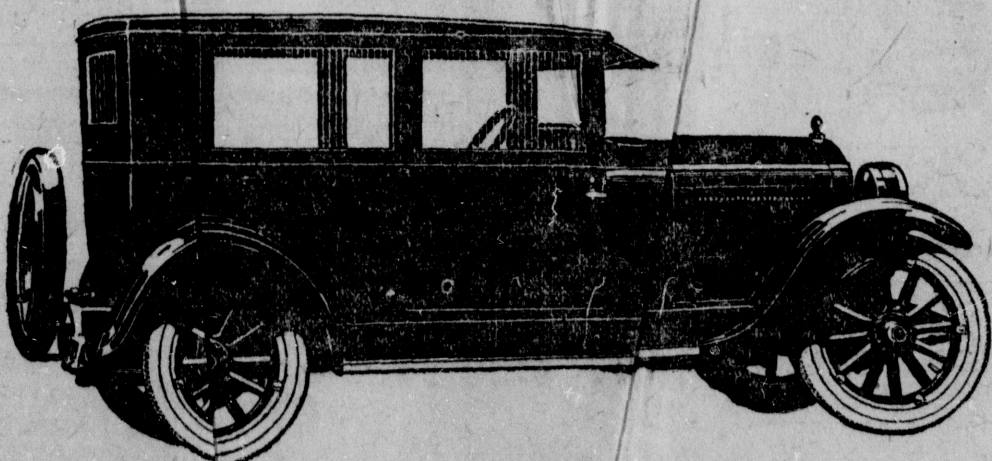

The chassis design lowers the center of gravity, giving greater comfort and safety, at all spots, on all roads. You will be interested in seeing how this is accomplished.

Greater fuel economy is obtained. The car is lighter, longer and roomier. You will agree that from the standpoint of appearance, delightful performance, and reliability, the new Essex provides ideal transportation.

BELIEVE TROUBLE NOTICED BY RADIO FANS IS REMEDIED

With the discovery of a loose connection in the lines of the Dayton Power and Light Company, between Spring Valley and Bellbrook Saturday morning, the cause of the excessive noise in radios over the city, is thought to have been eliminated. E. H. Heathman, manager of the power company, announced.

Mr. Heathman with Lyon Galloway, radio expert, Harry McPherson, expert from Detroit, and Albert Tucker of the power and light company made further tests of the line Saturday. They traced the trouble to a transformer on a pole, between Spring Valley and Bellbrook. The noise was found at two places, and after several tests when the transformers were disconnected, the loose connections were adjusted. After tests with a portable radio of Mr. McPherson's, the crew returned to Xenia, where the radio at the Elmer Fisher residence was tested, and found to be clear of all interference.

Mr. Heathman hopes that the discovery will clear the noise from other radios over the city, but said that the noise might re-occur at any time, due to the insulation wearing from the fires at any point, causing the electric currents to interfere with the radios. It is impossible to keep out all interference with the radios on the lines, he declared.

Any radio fans who find similar noises in their receiving sets are asked to notify Lyon Galloway or Mr. Heathman.

SHENANDOAH IS PICKED TO FLY TO NORTH POLE

The rigid airship Shenandoah, will make the flight to the North Pole, next summer. That was announced by Secretary Denby in making public the plan of the Naval Arctic Board for North Polar exploration. The board has completed its study of the means for exploring the "frozen Sahara," and its report includes recommendations for carrying out this mission.

The Navy Arctic expedition will have as its mission, first, to explore the unknown area of the North Polar region, and, second, to establish the practicability of trans-Polar air routes.

To carry out this mission, the board recommends that two vessels with mooring masts, six planes, one dirigible and certain mooring masts be used, and as early in the season as practicable.

The ships, with three planes each, will go to Nome and to Spitzbergen, where preliminary flights for aerological observations will be made.

When all is ready the Shenandoah will fly to Nome via mooring mast at Fort Wayne, San Diego, Puget Sound and Nome base; thence northward for the accomplishment of the mission.

The plan recommended by the board depends on distances to be covered and weather conditions. The Shenandoah will take off from Lakehurst, N. J., and moor at Fort Worth 1191 nautical miles. Other distances to be covered by her, leg by leg, are: Fort Worth to San Diego, 1003 nautical miles; San Diego to Puget Sound, 1200 nautical miles; Puget Sound to Nome, via Seward and the West Coast of Alaska, 1944 nautical miles; Nome to Point Barrow, 526 nautical miles; Point Barrow to the North Pole, 1117 nautical miles. From Nome to the middle of the unexplored area (82 degrees north 165 west) the distance is 1100 nautical miles.

The Shenandoah will use helium gas on her flights. One engine will be removed to convert space to living quarters. With the use of "water recovery," reduction of ballast by 3300 pounds zero wind, the cruising radii of the airship are estimated, allowing a margin of 15 per cent extra radius, as follows: 2900 nautical miles at 52 knots; 3445 nautical miles at 44 knots and 4250 nautical knots at 35 knots.

June, July and August are the months favored for the expedition.

The board recommends that the northern base be situated in the Nome district for these reasons: Early accessibility, proximity to unexplored area and to United States bases; it is American territory, its communications with the South are good and it has some local facilities.

The vessel at Nome base with a mooring mast is recommended because it may select a lee to which the Shenandoah can come in event of bad weather, and because the vessel can push on to the edge of the ice pack, thus advancing the northern base as well as the time of the flight.

The vessel with a mooring mast at Spitzbergen will provide a base in case the Shenandoah finds it is desirable to continue to that point through force of circumstances or to establish a trans-Polar air route.

A mooring mast will be established at Point Barrow, as an anchor to windward against the possibility that the Pole may not be reached the first summer. Point Barrow can be reached from Lakehurst by a direct flight of 2998 nautical miles. The Pole can be reached from Point Barrow with the good margin of 1117 miles, whereas the round trip from Nome to the Pole is problematical.

Equipment will be taken for a three-point mooring at Point Barrow. Arrangements will be made with the coast guard to have the cutter Bear at Point Barrow with as many men from the Nome base as can be berthed in her, for the purpose of hauling the Shenandoah down for refueling.

Some of the essentials of equipment are enumerated as follows: Radio equipment of maximum range, compass equipment, magnetic, radio, gyro, water recovery, planes equipped for Arctic conditions, scientific instruments and emergency rations and clothing.

The board considers that with all the ships, the Shenandoah and planes equipped as recommended and provided in ample time, the Arctic expedition is feasible and practicable during the summer of 1924 without undue risk to personnel or material.

Rear Admiral William A. Moffett, chairman of the board, in his report to Secretary Denby, makes the following observations:

"The purpose of the exploration is to determine and chart the location of land in an area one-third the size of the United States. This 1,000,000 square miles lying between Alaska and the Pole is as yet unexplored.

"The area requires to be searched and mapped by aerial photography in a systematic way. The work of the first summer would accomplish reconnaissance, the possible general location of some land and establishment of base from which the work could be continued in the future.

"The United States, through this work, may be the first to establish an air route from Western Europe to Japan over the top of the world.

"Both planes and the Shenandoah are necessary for the work. The airship can hover over spots, carry more equipment and has greater cruising radius. The planes are for shorter flights in the neighborhood of the northern operating base. They will secure aerological data to be sent to the United States by radio and acquaint the dirigible as to weather conditions.

"June will be spent in establishing the northern base. The exploration must be accomplished in July and August. When the mooring mast has been established at Nome and favorable weather reports have been received, the Shenandoah will fly direct from Puget Sound to Nome.

"The use of gasoline fuel during the long flight necessary for exploring lightens the airship considerably. To solve this problem a means has been found for recovering enough water from the gasoline burned to make up for the loss of weight in gasoline. This is known as "water recovery." Even greater weight of water can be obtained by the process than the original gasoline weighed."

The navy is determined that "nothing humanly possible" shall be left undone that will tend to insure the success of the expedition. It has been decided that the use of the airplanes and the airships in the Arctic is practicable and unattended by undue risks. The use of helium gas rather than hydrogen, in view of the noninflammable character of the former, minimizes the dangers of operation of the Shenandoah.

Secretary Denby, in a statement said: "Exploration and discovery have been among the most important returns rendered by the naval service aside from its primary service of national defense. Since the World War, the navy has been actively engaged in building up a strong air arm to co-operate with the fleet; and if, as a corollary to this, the work discovery and scientific investigation and pioneer work for air commerce can be accomplished it will be added justification for the development of a naval aviation."

Notwithstanding the bad weather, a large and enthusiastic audience greeted Paul Laurence Dunbar, the poet, at the Zion Baptist Church last night.

At the home of Mayor W. T. Trader and wife, on Tuesday evening, the North End Club was entertained in a most happy manner. It was a social occasion of much interest.

The cold weather has the effect of driving the wanderers into the police station for lodging, but not in such great numbers this year as in time past.

The advance man for the Brooke band of Chicago, which will play one of the justly famous "rag" concerts in Xenia, January 26, was in Xenia today.

MCClelland Neighborhood

Notwithstanding the inclement weather a large crowd was in attendance at the McPherson school entertainment Friday evening at Gladly Community Hall. A large Christmas tree was the center of attraction and after an interesting program by the pupils, gifts and a treat of candy and fruit was distributed to all. The teacher, Miss Evans, was presented with a handsome present from the pupils.

The George and Frank McClelland farm is being equipped with a Delco light system.

Mrs. Ruth Fulkerson of the McClelland Hospital force was able to return to her duties after a week's absence on account of sickness.

Mrs. Emma Ketter of Lower Bellbrook pike, entertained her children and grandchildren for Christmas Day.

Chas. Watkins' flock of sheep was raided by dogs Tuesday night. Five were killed and several badly lacerated.

A large company of relatives were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Fred McClelland and Mrs. Cynthia Ginn for Christmas dinner.

In the average home the New Years Dinner is not so elaborate an affair as the Christmas Dinner. This is because the family income has been strained to meet the many expenses of Christmas, and it cannot provide an expensive holiday feast a week later. Therefore the majority of housekeepers choose some roast of meat such as Baked Ham, Leg of Lamb, or Roast Loin of Pork to take the place of turkey or chicken at New Years. The following suggestions may help the inexperienced housekeeper to select suitable dishes to accompany these various roasts:

With Baked Ham: Serve Olives, Celery, Pea Soup, the ham, Mashed Potatoes, Baked Corn, Cranberry Jelly, Fruit Salad Mince and Pumpkin Pies, Coffee and Nuts and Raisins.

With Leg of Lamb: Serve Olives, Celery, Tomato Soup, the Lamb, Mashed Potatoes, Brown Gravy, Cranberry Jelly, Peas, Fruit Salad, Mince and Pumpkin Pies, Coffee, Nuts and Raisins.

With Loin of Pork: Serve Olives, Celery, the pork, Mashed Potatoes, Apple Sauce, Squash, Fruit Salad, Cranberry Pie, Mince Pie, Coffee, Nuts, Raisins.

The Fruit Salad mentioned, is made with diced oranges, bananas and Malaga grapes moistened with French Dressing and served on crisp lettuce.

For the sake of the inexperienced cook, I am giving the following recipe for Virginia Baked Ham (I assume that she knows how to roast the more familiar Leg of Lamb and Loin of Pork).

Virginia Baked Ham: Scrape a smoked ham with a dull knife, then soak it in cold water overnight. Scrape again in the morning, rinse, and place it skin-side down in a kettle of cold water; bring to a boil, then throw a pint of cold water into the kettle and remove the scum. Now put into the kettle ten allspice and black pepper corns, a pod of red pepper slit across, and a blade of mace. When the water again comes to the boiling point, stand the pot back on the range so that it will merely simmer. Keep the water standing one inch above the meat, adding more as it boils away. Keep lid on loosely. Let simmer till very tender (this of course depends upon the age, weight and hardness of the ham). When tender, let it cool in the same water, then drain and skin. Stick whole cloves into it all over the fat part, and sprinkle with powdered sugar. Place the meat in a roasting pan and add a little hot water, as with any roast. Bake in a slow oven for two hours, basting every 20 minutes.

Today's Talk

YOURSELF--NOT ANOTHER

I have become better acquainted with myself than anyone I have ever known. And I admit there is a great deal about me that I wish were not me.

But, after many years, I have decided that even though I do not like myself for many of my qualities, still I am me--myself--and not another.

I get along with myself fairly well--better than those who know me do. But then, they know me only a little and I know myself much. I have thought the matter over from every angle and have learned that I must make the best of all my faults and failings and try sincerely to express and give away this best in me getting along with the rest in the best way I know.

So I have evolved a simple philosophy: Be yourself--not another! After all, I am sure that this is what makes anyone interesting anyway. And while there is more of us who does not imitate to a certain degree, and take upon ourselves unconsciously certain characteristics that belong to others, still it is that something of personality and expression that gets us our place in the world.

Your innate intelligence and common sense, if properly mustered, are sure to save you from many a false road.

Few of us are anything but a make-up of contradictions. Like a native forest we find ourselves.

And so we must clear things only after great labor and pain are we able to clear away the stumps and have a clear cultivation and a rich harvest. The trouble with so many of us is a disposition to "live the other fellow who has toiled sweat and achieved."

All the more important for then, to be yourself--not another. God has a sound idea in mind for us all different, though in a form. And since we are so similar, we have that much opportunity to exchange and thus enriching our lives by living others.

MEMBERS OF JAPAN CABINET RESIGN TO PRINCE REGENT

Tokio, Dec. 29.—The Yamamoto cabinet passed into history today. Prince Regent Hirohito accepted the resignation of its members, which had been placed in his hands a few hours after an unsuccessful attempt had been made upon his life by a young college boy.

The Yamamoto cabinet came into being during the earthquake days and was known as the reconstruction cabinet. Its days were numbered because of opposition from the powerful Eiyuiki party but efforts were being made to keep it in power until after the marriage of the prince regent next month. These efforts probably would have been successful but for the attempt upon the prince regent's life.

Viscount Goto, minister of home affairs, assuming responsibility for failure to prevent the attack, immediately resigned and later his cabinet colleagues joined in offering their resignations to the regent as a mark of humiliation.

Acceptance by the regent was delayed pending advice of the elder statesmen among whom there was some division of opinion.

MEXICAN REBELS TO PRESENT CAUSE AT CAPITAL, IT IS SAID

Vera Cruz, Dec. 29.—A revolutionary commission, appointed by Adolfo de la Huerta, leader of the Mexican revolt, is enroute to Washington to present the cause of the rebels, it was announced today.

The commission, headed by Juan Lopez, sailed for New Orleans, yesterday on the steamship Nicaragua and Virginia. It will proceed to Washington immediately upon arrival at New Orleans.

Revolutionary headquarters here announced two important victories over the federals and declared that General Guadalupe Sanchez, rebel generalissimo, is so encouraged over the situation that he has ordered an immediate offensive on the Esperanza and Oriental fronts.

Obregon forces suffered defeat in an attempt to recapture Pueblo, according to revolutionary headquarters. General Alor commanded the Huerta forces.

Capture of a provision train at La Guana, a small town between San Luis and Saitillo, also is claimed by the rebels, who say officials of the train and federal guard were also taken prisoner.

General Sanchez has issued a proclamation against private persons possessing arms or ammunition in the "occupied areas," thus minimizing the danger of capture of the arms by enemies.

Revolutionary advisers also report the defeat of the federals in an attempt to recapture Manzanilla under protection of cruisers. They met complete defeat at the hands of General Estrada, it is claimed.

"The world has not yet recovered from the intoxication of war," said Mr. Zangwill. "We have lived almost a decade of insanity, and it is time now for things to change." America, according to Mr. Zangwill, is not a nation. It is merely a contingent, he declared, with a vast and chaotic social organism not yet thoroughly amalgamated.

HIRAM JOHNSON TO ENTER PRIMARIES FOR ALABAMA VOTES

Washington, Dec. 29.—Announcement was made by Senator Hiram Johnson that he will enter the Alabama primary in the contest to obtain the 16 delegates from that state to the Cleveland convention. The primary will be held the second Tuesday in March.

An entry in the primary has been made on behalf of President Coolidge, so that the election will be a clear-cut race between the president and Senator Johnson for the Alabama delegation. The result will be important by reason of the fact that the primary will be the second in order among the states, that of South Dakota, to be held March 5, being the first.

Senator Johnson's announcement is a direct answer to reports which were published in certain newspapers to the effect that he is preparing to withdraw entirely from the fight for the nomination and allow it to go to President Coolidge by default.

The senator spent several hours in conference with his campaign manager, Frank H. Hitchcock, who had come down from New York to report on the situation as observed by him on his recent trip to the west. Hitchcock reported that the campaign is progressing favorably.

Today, 31 years after the cornerstone of the great Cathedral of St. John the Divine, in New York City, planned as the world's greatest Episcopal cathedral, was laid, the edifice is just one-third completed. Great efforts are being made to raise $15,000,000 to carry on the work of construction.

GENERAL WOOD'S SON MAKES $800,000.

Lieut. Osborne Wood.

Lieutenant Osborne Cutler Wood, son and aide of Governor-General Leonard Wood, of the Philippines, is soon to resign from the army to seek a diplomatic career. Young Wood, only 26, has "cleaned up" $800,000 by stock market transactions. General Wood, a man of small means himself, put an end to his son's financial transactions, believing it unwise for a young man to make so great a fortune rapidly. Certain gossip caused the War Department to make an investigation, which resulted in showing that Lieutenant Wood's transactions had been absolutely legitimate and straightforward stock deals, in which he showed remarkable financial acumen. None of his dealings were in Philippine securities, Lieutenant Wood believing it wrong to deal in stocks which might be influenced by any of his father's official actions. Young Wood, a Harvard graduate, enlisted as a private in 1918, but failed to get overseas. He was appointed a Second Lieutenant of Infantry on his twenty-first birthday, in September, 1918.

ST. HIGH QUINTE TAKES SECOND GAME FROM SPRINGFIELD

By L. J. Wones

The East High basketball team alked up its second win of the season Friday night at the East high gym at the expense of the Springfield H. Y. team. The final score was 32 to 12.

The game was scarcely a minute old when Baker and Taylor counted on the field. This seemed to be a starting signal for the winners and the East bunch hit the net frequently. The score at the end of the half was 20 to 7 with the locals leading. Coach Lewis injected his fire second string quintet into the game and they kept up the work as regulars except that the pace was not as fast. The East end displayed a five man defense and gave the visitors plenty of trouble when they tried to work the ball down the floor. The locals defense was especially tight in the second half as the visitors scored only five points, one field goal and three fouls.

Baker and D. Ware were high in scoring. Baker had 16 points to his credit while D. Ware had 10. Taylor looked good at the other end. The guarding of H. Taylor and Raymond was high class. Merchant and Buckner were Springfield's best bets.

Two preliminaries were staged, and both were fast and furious all the way. In the first tilt the Lincolns defeated the Jamestown Stars by a 10 to 2 score. The second bout between the Dead Shots and the Lion Tamers was won by the latter 10 to 1.

WOOL GROWERS TO MEET THURSDAY

Re-organization of the Greene County Sheep and Wool Growers' Association will take place at a meeting to be held at the Assembly room of the Court House, Thursday, January 3.

The meeting will be the annual business session, and will be addressed by an officer from the Ohio State Sheep and Wool Growers' Association. J. C. Williamson, Xenia, is president of the local association, holding that office since its inception.

BERNARD MACFADDEN

Meat adds no essential food values that can not be derived more cheaply from other sources if the digestive organs are normal. As used in the conventional American diet, meat supplies entirely too much protein, which sometimes results in overburdening the excretory organs with nitrogenous waste products. Moreover, meat contains the waste products of the animal and these substances are very similar to the waste from human cells, though with a healthy digestion this is easily eliminated in the alimentary canal.

For the further consideration of foods of vegetable origin, we can divide them in the following groups: Grain and Grain Products; Roots or Tubers; Leafy Vegetables; Fruits; Nuts; Extracted Oils; Extracted or Manufactured Sugars. All of the above groups of foods are wholesome and may be included in the diet, but they are not equally complete, or of equal dietetic worth. Some of these foods, while harmless if used in moderate quantities and in proper combination with other foods, result in a seriously deficient diet if used in such proportions as to crowd out other groups.

Because of the mistakes of flour manufacturers all grains and grain products could be entirely eliminated from the human diet, and thereby decrease the danger of dietary deficiencies. It is difficult to do this because grains and their products supply the great bulk of human food. Indeed it would not be possible without revolutionary changes in our agriculture and food producing methods, to support the human race without the use of grain.

Grains are the seeds of various grass plants. The bulk of the substance of all grains is starch. Together with this starch is incorporated from eight to ten per cent vegetable protein. The starchy substance of grain may be ground up to produce flour and meals which are the basis of our bread-making and baking arts. In addition to this starchy portion which fills the endosperm or bulky interior of the grain all grains have an outer coating of bran, and also a germ. The milling industry adopted the practice of removing both bran and germ, because they are usually darker in color and cannot be ground as fine. The refined flour from which both the bran and germ are removed is whiter and finer and incidentally will make a lighter, airier loaf of bread. Such a flour appealed to the fastidious taste of the housewife. The removal of the bran and germ results in a serious loss in nutritive values.

BOXWELL ON FIRST YEAR COURT SQUAD AT BG TEN SCHOOL

Paul Boxwell, of this city is among less than 30 freshman basketball candidates at Ohio State University still on the squad following the annual pruning process.

Likewise Boxwell is one of 11 erstwhile high school court captains striving for positions on the yearling five at the Columbus school. Nearly 100 first year candidates made bids for positions on the squad now cut to less than 30.

Practically all on the squad now are from Ohio and all of the former captains are Buckeye products. Boxwell starred in both basketball and football at Central High School, and was captain in each sport.

Among the captains on the State squad are Bill Hunt, former Toledo Scott High leader; Gordon Jeffrey, ex-Toledo Waite High chieftain and A. E. Tarbert, erstwhile Cleveland East High captain.

Others besides Boxwell are W. T. Burtner, Canal Winchester; O. A. Wheeler, Sidney; Paul Boxwell, Xenia; R. B. Garber, Fairview; C. I. Burns, Rosewood; W. B. Seyler, Haverly; J. W. Relf, Walnut Hills, Cincinnati and A. L. Kiewit, Harrison.

Beaver Creek High School basketball teams divided games with the Alumni teams at Beaver Friday night, the boys' team losing 32 to 28, and the girls' winning 15 to 12.

The boys' game was nip and tuck throughout and the teams were frequently tied. A knotted court looked inevitable until the last few minutes to play, when Durnbaugh, former star on the county champion five, rolled in two baskets that put the graduates out in front.

The lineup and summary:
Beaver (28) ..... Alumni (32)
Mirandi ..... LF ..... Durnbaugh
Brill ..... RF ..... O'Hara
Miller ..... C ..... Wolf
Routzahn ..... LG ..... Kundert
Wolf ..... RG ..... Huston
Substitutions: Beaver—Jacobs for Routzahn, Routzahn for Jacobs.

Miss Farris at forward starred for the Beaver High girls in their first game over the former stars, contributing most of the baskets. Beaver girls play with only five players, the one center running the floor. The lineup and summary:

Beaver (15) ..... Alumnae (12)
Hawker ..... F ..... Green
Farris ..... F ..... Netherton
Cyphers ..... C ..... Lewis

CEDARVILLE FIVE DEFEATS DEFIANCE IN OVERTIME GAME

Cedarville College Varsity quintet defeated Defiance College 25 to 23 in a thrilling overtime contest at the Montgomery County Fairgrounds, Dayton, Friday night.

Coming from behind with a rush when the score was 23 to 9 against them, the Cedarville pastimers steadily gained until they knotted the count as the final whistle blew. In the additional time allowed, they counted the two points that won the game.

Two former Central High stars, Larry Currie and Walker Taylor, starred for the Reformed Presbyterians, scoring with a short shot and soon added two more points. Lankau made the count six before Currie rang in with a pair. Defiance again forged ahead rapidly, so that the score was 16 to 9 as the half closed.

Defiance again started with a rush at the opening of the second half, running the total to 23 to 9. Then Townsley opened for Cedarville and the Greene County led found their pace. Taylor counted four times and Currie twice in the rest of the half, so that the score was 23 all at the close of the regulation time. Rockhold added the basket in the overtime period that won the game.

Cedarville won through success in long shots, as the Defiance five-man defense kept them from working with short ranges. Cedarville was handicapped by the absence of three regulars. The lineup and summary:

Cedarville (25) ..... Defiance (23)

BY SIDNEY THATCHER

"Upon the red-headed women of the world rests much responsibility. They are the most attractive. And they always have been in history. Let us be proud that we are red-headed!"—Delysia, stage star. "There was time our mothers tell us, when red hair was scorned and people said that white hair was always followed a red-haired girl or something of the sort. But in history, certainly, the red-headed woman was always superior, and now we lead in scholarship. We believe soon that brunettes instead of coloring their hair to become blondes will eventually color it red."—Miss Edna Loewy, president of the "Red Headed Club."

"Why is it that people outside of the theater never seem to understand those engaged in the profession? To most people who are not in the theatrical business, the people of the stage are freaks—abnormal in their desires and mode of living. Entertainers are people to be shunned, except when their services are required to make a successful benefit for a cause which they neither heed nor care. These days of education campaigns, I do not know of one that is needed more than a systematic enlightenment of the laymen on the stage and its people. If we could only teach them that we are normal, healthy people who have homes that we love and that the same social customs and recreations that they practice belong to us as well, they would change their opinion of us."—Claire DeVine, actress.

"No fundamental changes in football seems to be required. On the contrary, evidence continues to accumulate that the task the committee undertook some years ago of gradually, through the medium of the rules, changing the game of American rugby football from one that was becoming a closed mass formation and probably too hazardous a game into an open, running game, free from unnecessary hazards, has been practically accomplished."—E. K. Hall, Dartmouth, chairman, rules committee, National Collegiate Athletic Association.

"Writing requires co-ordination of the finer muscles, as music does, or the higher mechanical arts. It is generally assumed that writing is so elementary a subject that it should be completed in the lower grades and require no further attention. Lack of practice in good writing, however, causes the art to be lost as we grow older, despite training which is thorough and practical in the early grades as any training which the schools ever supplied. Higher education includes many lecture courses which require taking notes as one listens. The result is writing which even the writer can scarcely read. With many, such writing becomes a habit, for as soon as good muscular movement is lost in writing, the writing becomes poor. Then tendency is toward scribbling with the finger movement only."—Miss Harriet Graham, supervisor of writing, Springfield, O.

"In man we recognize the herd instinct in many characteristic reactions. Decided originality in conduct is looked upon with suspicion. What the majority say or do is right. Man has fixed ideas—that is, his mental reactions are governed by what those individuals he most associates with or literature read, he says is proper. The herd is his normal environment—that is, he is fearful of solitude, physical or mental. He is remarkably susceptible to leadership. He is subject to the passions of the pack, as seen in mob violence and heresy spasms. He is more sensitive to the voice of the herd than to any other influence; it can inhibit or stimulate conduct, courage, energy, endurance."—Prof. Ellsworth Huntington, Yale University.

MOTHER FINED FOR WHIPPING TEACHER

Anniston, Ala., Dec. 31.—A hair-pulling wrestling match, flavored with a bit of Jack Dempsey punch, occurred in a fashionable residence of this community recently, all because a young school teacher whipped the young son of Mrs. Annie Williamson, owner of the fashionable home.

According to the story told in court later by Miss Cleo Mills, the young school teacher, she whipped young Williamson because he persisted in fighting the peaceful members of the little school. A short while after she had administered the rod to the boy the young lady was summoned to the Williamson home by the boy's mother.

"I want to show you how that whip felt to my boy!" Mrs. Williamson was quoted as saying when Miss Mills entered her home.

Miss Mills forthwith objected to such brutal treatment from the boy's mother, and a scuffle for possession of the whip ensued.

When the case came up in court Mrs. Williamson was fined $50 and costs on a charge of assaulting Miss Mills.

AN OMEN
Chapter 61

Cynthia and Dale arrived back in New York. It was past 6 o'clock when their train pulled into the Grand Central Station.

"Must you go home now? Let's have dinner together," Dale tried to persuade.

"But our bags!" Cynthia returned hesitatingly, as the porter put them down to wait instructions.

"We can send yours up to the house, and I'll check mine here," he suggested quickly.

Cynthia waited. A sunless mood was upon her and she longed for something gay and diverting. The depressing memory of Hope's trim, knickerbockered form, the wild, crude loneliness of the forest, and a strange new light in Lee Brown's eyes, lingered to torment her.

She turned quickly to Dale. "All right! Tend to them for me." In her voice was a quality which said, "Do anything you want, only let's be gay. I must stop thinking."

Dale caught the tone immediately. He jumped forward and directed the porter.

"Now, it won't take a minute. Will you wait here or go with me?" he questioned, laying his hand fondly on her arm.

"I'll wait, Dale. Hurry, won't you?" she decided, and her eyes refused to meet his. She felt unpleasantly forlorn, and she was loath to let Dale read her feelings.

Cynthia was not a person of extreme moods, and she seldom sank very far in dejection. If her nature indulged in ultra expression it was always toward the heights. She liked dancing lightly on the top of life, and now she was eager to climb back again into the sunlight and shake off this gloom into which her trip to the Adirondacks had plunged her.

"Back again! Now for a taxi," Dale greeted, returning suddenly. He took her arm and guided her up the steps. "Where shall we go? Have you any choice?" he asked solicitously.

"Lots of music—a cabaret!" she answered, brightening at the thought of it.

He hailed a taxi and helped her into it. As it whisked around and out of the station Dale sank back comfortably and placed his hand over Cynthia's.

"This is the life! Isn't it, Dale? You—you're glad to get back, aren't you? I can tell it in your voice," he said.

"Yes, this is better. I'm afraid I like plenty of bubbles in my champagne," she returned, with a relieved laugh that shook the gloominess out of her voice.

Dale joined in the laugh and caught her hand up impetuously.

"You ought not to have anything but luxury, Cynthia. You can't take a hot-house plant to a swamp and expect it to bloom," he exclaimed ardently.

"Perhaps not, Dale dear—not my variety," Cynthia returned, adding suddenly: "Though an orchid thrives in that sort of culture." Then she became silent and thought to herself, though she did not tell her thoughts to Dale, "—and Lee always likes orchids best of all. I wonder if that's an omen." She hated the idea, but somehow something made her think of Hope as like an orchid. Hope was so preclusive and debonair and she seemed to thrive in that barren wilderness.

Cynthia turned to Dale impulsively. "I want to dance, and dance, and dance tonight. I want to just fill my heart with music, and motion, and dazzling lights."

"That's the idea! We—why, we'll dance all night if you say the word," he returned eagerly, and lifted her small hand to his lips.

But she was not in the mood for that sort of thing from Dale and she drew her hand slowly away.

"Aren't we most there? I do wish that taxi driver would hurry. I—I don't like shadows and gloominess."

Even the inside of a taxi is depressing—isn't it?" she said, turning from him, and peering anxiously out of the window.

Dale watched her wonderingly. He would have given a great deal to have known what her feelings were just then. There was something he wanted to ask her, but her strange mood blanched the warmth of his ardor.

EDWARD HART AND
ROBERT BARR PLEASE
AUDIENCE FRIDAY

Showing finished technique, gal from eminent music masters of New York, Edward Hart, organist, and Robert Barr, formerly of this city, lighted a large audience of Xenia's lovers at the First United Presbyterian Church, Friday evening, assisted by Robert Barr, of Columbus, baritone.

The program was exceptional, pleasing to the audience of patriots and friends of both artists, each number being given with pleasing results. Outstanding among Mr. Hart's numbers, which vied for favors, was "Solata in a minor," by Felix Borowski.

The program was divided into two parts, the first part including a group of numbers by Mr. Hart, and Mr. Barr, and the second, two Hart groups and four numbers by Mr. Barr.

Mr. Barr possesses an unusual, fine baritone voice and had splendid stage presence, revealing experience before appreciative audiences. "The Pilgrim's Song" by Tchaikowsky was one of the favorites of his offerings.

The Paradox of Climate and Calendar

A remarkable paradox of climate and calendar is apparent at this season of the year. According to the calendar

It Is Winter

That means—in this northern country—a period of overcast skies and penetrating winds—of cold driving rains, and snow and ice—and an occasional blizzard with the bottom dropping out of the thermometer.

But—and here is where the paradox comes in—in spite of the calendar which may register January or February, cold midwinter months—it is

Yet Glorious Summer
in Florida

From December to March is the most delightful period of the year in Florida. The air is soft and balmy, the sunshine is brilliant and perennial, the orange groves and the palm trees are fascinating and life out-of-doors is an unalloyed joy. There are great hotels and small hotels and an innumerable number of cottages, bungalows and boarding houses. A midwinter vacation in such an environment is refreshing and stimulating and the fountain of youth is just beyond the horizon.

Winter tourist tickets at reduced fares and with attractive stop-over privileges are now on sale. Detailed information with respect thereto—and through sleeping car reservations on luxuriously appointed trains—can be obtained by conferring with any ticket agent of the Pennsylvania Railroad or by addressing W. W. Richardson, Passenger Traffic Manager, Syracuse Building, St. Louis.
